

U.S. Citizenship through Naturalization

What is Naturalization?

Naturalization is the way immigrants become citizens of the United States. If you were not born a citizen, you must be naturalized to become one.

Deciding to become a U.S. citizen is one of the most important decisions in a person's life. If you decide to apply for naturalization, you will be showing your commitment to the United States. You will also be showing your loyalty to its Constitution and its people. When you are naturalized, you agree to accept all of the responsibilities of being a citizen. In return, you are rewarded with all the rights and privileges that are part of citizenship.

Go to the link bellow to learn more about naturalization:

<http://www.uscis.gov/files/article/M-476.pdf>